Scorpio: A Scorpio was a small, catapult-like engine that was something like a crossbow on a tripod. It could shoot a large, spear-like bolt about 300-400 yards. The "artillery" was fairly standard issue to legions, and it