Generally, battles are fought until one side withdraws, so there is usually no need to keep track of how many turns have passed.