Maniple: Each line of Hastati and Principes fought in maniples, ten per legion line. They often arrayed in checkerboard, quincunx fashion which, together with their training, allowed them to move back and forth through each other, giving the manipular legion a remarkable flexibility on the battlefield.