HISTORICAL NOTE: Missile units, with their lower TQs and susceptibility to shock by heavier units, appear to be "weak" units. However, they have two abilities which make them quite useful: they can (usually) fire during movement and most can use Harassment & Dispersal fire. Their combat effectiveness was limited, though, because of a lack of penetrative capability—a problem that would remain until the inventions of the crossbow and the Welsh longbow.