DESIGN NOTE: There is no penalty for moving foot javelinists, who use movement to gain momentum for their missiles. If you want to be technical, play that they do not get the penalty only if all movement is/was forward. Remember, foot units and mounted javelinists may not fire during Orderly Withdrawal. Javelinists are also penalized less when firing through the front of Phalanx/Heavy Infantry units. This represents the fact that the lighter shafts of the skirmisher-type archers and slingers were most effective against the formidable shield-wall and body armor of the heavy infantry when firing "from above" into the body of troops; at point-blank range they could not do that.
