9.12 Elephant Screens: Elephants were quite vulnerable to missile attacks, and, to protect against this, armies surrounded each Elephant with its own light screen of skirmishers, usually archers represented by the small "a" on the counter. The firepower is much less than normal archer units, to account for the size of the screen and its tactical use.