Moving on to Celt C's frontal attack, the Roman player again has a choice of which Type to use and chooses the Triarii to lead the defense—base column 6 (MI vs. HI). A check of the Shock Superiority Chart shows no Weapon System Superiority. The Sizes are offsetting (5 vs. 3+2), and there are no other applicable shifts. The Carthaginian player rolls a 6, which on column 6 yields a "2(2)" result. Celt C incurs 2 Hits, while the 2 defender Hits are distributed evenly between the two units, each receiving 1 Hit.
